

opened up! The boat went through and the bridge closed up again. Luckily, my boat managed to fit underneath. Soon, I came to London Bridge. I had heard that there was a Nursery rhyme about London bridge falling down. Lots of red buses went by on the bridge above. 10 minutes later, I came to the Thames barrier. It was built in 1982 to protect London from flooding. I had heard that there was a big flood in 1953 that killed 307 people. The gates rotated as my boat passed through. I moved closer to the sea.

The current was ~~tr~~ very fast as I entered the Estuary. I dipped paw in the water. It was freezing. So I had some Hot chocolate. The estuary was 8000 metres wide. I was ~~off~~ almost at the end of my journey. So I finished off the last two ~~sandwich~~ sandwiches. The river got wider as I entered ~~sheerness~~ Southend on sea. The ~~p~~ town were the estuary is) the river got wider and wider until I floated out into the North Sea.

Friday 20th January 2017

River Thames

Heropz as still as a statues by the waters edge.

water from the weir liquid rapidly spiralling like a staircase. shadows in the gloomy water gushing water at the weir make sure you don't go too near...

Excellent work
Mark

Art, Grey

3